Sound of music

Hackney One Carnival returns on Sunday 14 September, with banging music, fabulous costumes and spectacular dancing

THE streets of Hackney are once again set to pulsate to the sounds of music as Hackney One Carnival returns on 14 September.

Colourful costumes, funky dancing and banging beats will add to the carnival atmosphere as hundreds of performers get together for a celebration of the different cultures in Hackney. The procession is set to leave Ridley Road at 2pm and wind south along Dalston Lane and Richmond Road, towards Hackney Town Hall and then up the Narrow Way, before heading back to the starting point, via Dalston Lane. Visitors are encouraged to tweet and share their photos of the Council-run event with the hashtag #HackneyOneCarnival. For more, see pages 8-9.

NIGHT SWIMMING

LONDON Fields Lido users will soon be able to swim into the darker evenings as the Council gets set to illuminate the heated outdoor Olympic-sized swimming pool.

The Lido will be open to the public between 6.30am and 9pm, all year round from December, allowing residents to use the heated facilities before and after work in autumn and winter.

Work will commence on the phased installation of eight floodlight columns on 8 September, after the Planning Inspectorate gave the nod to the Council's plans in May.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "We talked to Lido users about how we could improve what has quickly become a much-loved borough asset since we reopened the pool in 2006 after a major refurbishment.

"The overwhelming response was that people wanted to swim more often, later into the year, and before and after work or into the evenings – the floodlights mean residents will now be able to do so.

"The pool owes much of its popularity to its environmentally-friendly heating system, which keeps the water temperature at a constant 25C, even in the coldest weather. Now, with these extended opening hours, there's no excuse not to take a dip and enjoy all the health and lifestyle benefits that swimming brings."

In addition to the floodlights, lighting will also be installed to the poolside changing cubicles and new LEDs will illuminate the entrance and cycle rack area. The underwater pool lights will also be replaced with new energy-saving bulbs.

The lighting has been selected in order to minimise potential light pollution for residents and wildlife. The work, which is not expected to affect the availability of the pool, will be completed by the end of November.

Etec Contract Services, a South Woodford-based company, has been awarded the contract following a tendering process.

The Council and its leisure partner GLL gave residents and Lido users the opportunity to view the proposals earlier this year.

New pavilion proposed

PLANS have been submitted for a new £3.6million sports pavilion on Hackney Marshes.

If approved, it would mark the completion of a long-term project called 'Remaking the Marshes' with the goal of making facilities on the Marshes fit for the 21st century.

The proposed building in North Marsh will provide modern cricket and football changing rooms, as well as a social space and viewing gallery.

It will replace the current changing facilities next to Cow Bridge, off Mandeville Road, which do not meet current regulations.

A new car park has also been proposed, which is smaller than the one that used to serve North Marsh before 2010. It has 68 car spaces compared to 240.

Hackney Marshes is widely considered the home of grassroots football with more than 60 football pitches, the greatest concentration anywhere in Europe. It also has 10 cricket pitches and three rugby pitches.

> "The Marshes needs modern facilities that are accessible to the widest possible range of people"

Artist's impression of the proposed new sports pavilion on the Marshes

However, the pitches in the northern area are poorly served by the existing changing block, meaning players and teams are often put off from using them.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "Hackney Marshes is a fantastic asset for the borough and is renowned across the world as the home of grassroots football. It's also increasingly becoming a centre for cricket in London.

"The current North Marsh changing rooms are not fit for purpose. The Marshes needs modern facilities that are accessible to the widest possible range of people.

"When not being used for sport this is a beautiful and tranquil area and, as such, we've tried hard to ensure the new pavilion will be as unobtrusive and eco-friendly as possible, not detrimental to local wildlife and shielded by greenery."

Proposals for a new pavilion and its suggested location were supported by the majority of residents during a public consultation last year, which also found 63 per cent of respondents would play more sport if one was built.

The Football Foundation and the England and Wales Cricket Board, which have contributed £2.7million towards the project, have also backed the proposals.

Part of the planning application also seeks retrospective permission for the East Marsh car park to replace the one which was built over to create the temporary transport hub and other facilities for the 2012 Olympic Games.

Disability campaigner dies

TRIBUTES are being paid to Ron Newman who died on 22 August, at St Joseph's Hospice, aged 55.

Ron worked for Disability BackUp and was a long-term Hackney resident who worked diligently to improve services for disabled people.

A wheelchair user himself, following a stroke in 2002, Ron was conscious of the problems disabled people faced, and campaigned tirelessly for equality and inclusion for everyone.

Ron became co-ordinator of the London 2012 disability advocate group (DAG) – set up to support and engage disabled people during the Olympic and Paralympic Games – and also volunteered as a Games Maker.

> "Ron was a tireless campaigner for disabled people's rights, and campaigned with energy and enthusiasm"

Last year Ron hosted an international day for disabled people event at Cre8 Lifestyle Centre, in Hackney Wick, with an emphasis on opportunities for disabled people.

This year, Hackney CVS will be awarding Ron a posthumous Adiaha Antigha Lifetime Award for outstanding contribution to Hackney's voluntary and community sector and for services to disabled people.

Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, said: "Ron was a tireless campaigner for disabled people's rights, and campaigned with energy and enthusiasm to make the borough a more inclusive place for everyone.

"In addition to his work in the community, Ron gave freely of his time whenever the Council wanted service users' input to any consultations or service redesign – he was always willing to offer advice, never afraid to speak his mind, and he often made the Council think again in a constructive way."

Meg Hillier, MP for Hackney South and Shoreditch, added: "Ron was a passionate campaigner for disability rights. He always made sure that the rights and needs of disabled people in Hackney were on the agenda locally."

Ron is survived by his three daughters and his wife, Miriam. A service in memory of his life will be held on 12 September.

News in brief

Want to become a foster carer?

RESIDENTS who are interested in becoming a foster carer or adopter are invited to attend an informal chat at the Hackney Picturehouse cafe, in Mare Street.

The Council's head of corporate parenting, Alison Bishop, will be on hand to answer any questions at the event on 10 September, from 11.30am-1pm.

For more info on fostering and adopting, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/fostering; or call: 0800 0730 418.

Free Cycle Hackney app

CYCLE enthusiasts can download the free Cycle Hackney app and help the Council create the best streets for cycling in the UK.

The app allows riders to record journeys, give instant feedback, report issues and request improvements, as well as measure distances and calories burned.

Community chest grants open

GRANTS of £1,000 are available for voluntary sector and community groups in Hackney who want to deliver community events.

To be eligible for funding through the Council's Community Chest Grant, projects should help foster good relations by building a strong sense of community, neighbourliness and pride.

The grants can fund events delivered any time between this November and next March.

Universal Board Games was awarded a grant of £1,000 earlier this year. Mem Mehmet, project facilitator, said: "Thanks to the funding we were able to hold five global game playing events in Dalston Square in June and July. "More than 200 people took part and they came from a variety of ages, cultures and background."

Applications will close at midday on 26 September. For more info or to apply, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/ce-pandc-community-grants-871

Keri-Anne Payne, David Walliams and Rebecca Adlington are SwimBritain advocates for the event taking place this month

Swim with Rebecca Adlington at London Fields Lido

RESIDENTS will get the chance to swim with Olympic gold medallist Rebecca Adlington this month as London Fields Lido is set to host SwimBritain.

There are two ways to get involved with the challenge which takes place on 28 September. SwimBritain1000 is a four-person relay, with each member of the team swimming four 250 metre laps; in SwimBritain500 team members swim half that distance.

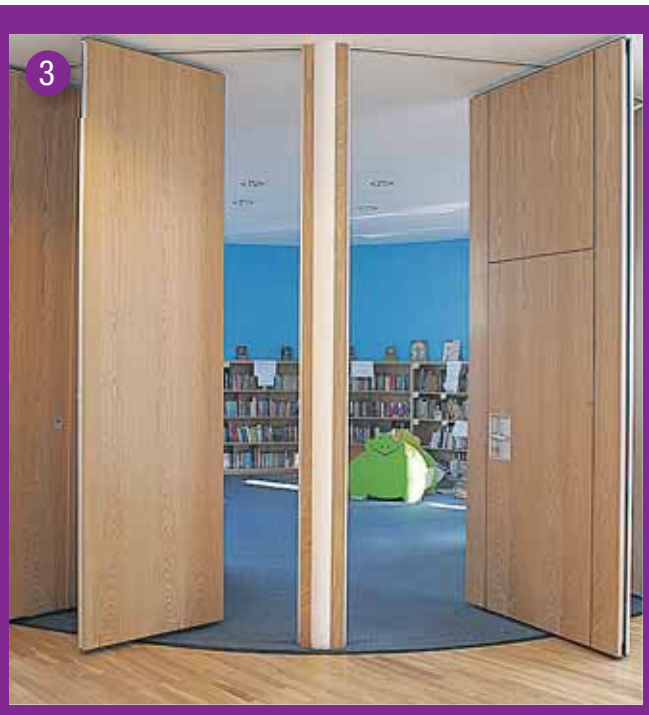

This year, SwimBritain hopes to get 500,000 people swimming more regularly. It has support from big names such as Ellie Simmonds, Michael Jamieson and David Walliams, who swam 140 miles of the River Thames for Sport Relief in 2011.

Rebecca said: "I may have retired from professional swimming but I will always love being in the water, and a challenge like SwimBritain is brilliant as it's really inclusive – not just for professional swimmers."

Hackney's hidden hotspots

Visit some of the borough's most interesting buildings and spaces for free during the Open House London weekend, from 20 to 21 September

MANY of Hackney's most interesting buildings and spaces are set to open their doors to the public for free for this year's Open House London weekend.

Open House London, which runs from 20 to 21 September, is an opportunity to explore – and learn more about – architecture, design, public spaces and infrastructure in the capital.

More than 800 buildings and spaces will open their doors across London, including 43 in Hackney, alongside a programme of neighbourhood walks, architects' talks, workshops and tours – all for free.

The theme for this year is 'revealing' with a particular focus on spaces to live in, how the city works, places and spaces in the city and a greener city.

Hackney highlights include the recycled tube carriages above Village Underground, which have been turned into unique work spaces; the Writer's Shed, a wooden studio of a children's author and illustrator; the Gingerbread House, a new build house on the site of a former box factory and the National Centre for Circus Arts, housed in the former Shoreditch Electricity Generating Station.

> "Open House is a unique event, offering people across London the chance to explore and learn about the capital's architecture"

The recycled tube carriages above Village Underground

There will also be the rare chance to visit a wildlife site in Stoke Newington which has been closed to the public since 1833 and is due to officially open next year. The Woodberry Wetlands site encompasses the New River, East Reservoir, the mid 19th-century Grade II listed Gas House and the Ivy House Sluice.

Victoria Thornton, founding director of Open-City, which organises the annual event, said: "Open House is a unique and vibrant annual event, offering people across London the chance to explore and learn about the capital's architecture.

"This year we're putting together a great programme of open buildings, walks, tours and talks."

The last days of summer

OVER 400 residents from two Hackney Homes estates came out to participate in two informative and fun-filled community days.

The summer events were held at the Frampton Park Estate, in Woolridge Way, on 22 August, and the Kings Crescent Estate in Brownswood, Stoke Newington, on 30 August.

Residents were able to find out about a variety of services available to them, and let their hair down at the same time.

Information stalls included estate safety, recycling, the energy advice team, repairs, leaseholders, the Fire Brigade, healthy eating advice and local opportunities from the Prince's Trust.

A DJ got people in the mood to dance, and zumba classes and street dance workshops proved to be popular with young and old alike. Kids were entertained with foosball, a bouncy castle, pirate ship, sandpit and face painting.

The Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Sharon Patrick, opened both events. She said: "I'm delighted that people are interested in finding out more about existing and new services available to them and taking part in activities."

> "I'm delighted that people are interested in finding out more about existing and new services available"

Jeffrey Boateng, nine, Melvina Boateng, 11, and Chloe Penton, 13

Kings Crescent resident Patricia Sim also took the opportunity to show off the estate's new community garden. She said "Kings Crescent is a lovely estate and the community garden is for everyone. Residents meet up every fortnight to tend to the plants and shrubbery and it is also really nice to see children getting involved to."

The Council is currently regenerating Kings Crescent, increasing the number of Council homes for social renting on the estate from 195 to 274. It is also providing 115 homes for shared ownership and 296 for private sale, to help pay for the high quality new Council homes for social renting.

The new blocks will all be between five and 12 storeys high, and there will be a new community centre and retail space. At the two events, there was also a chance for residents to engage further in the current proposal to return housing management of local authority housing stock from Hackney Homes to Hackney Council. The consultation runs until 31 October.

Hackney One Carnival returns on 14 September with colourful costumes and banging beats

VISITORS to the borough will be shaking their tail feathers and dancing in the streets as Hackney One Carnival returns on 14 September.

The Council-run event will bring together hundreds of performers from carnival and community groups in a celebration of the different cultures in Hackney.

Among the spectacular talent to join the afternoon of colour, music, food and dance moves is Soca Saga Boys, who are fresh from Notting Hill Carnival.

They are working alongside Shacklewell Primary School, E8, which has also joined the parade for the first time.

> "Carnival is a chance for the community to unite and share our culture"

Soca Saga Boys member Rena Kydd-Williams said: "We have been at the carnival from the very start and seen how it has progressed over the years. It's a chance for the community to unite and share our culture."

Other groups performing include Pantonic Steel Orchestra, Jamboulay and Paraiso School of Samba.

The procession is set to leave Ridley Road at 2pm and wind south along Dalston Lane and Richmond Road, towards Hackney Town Hall and then up the Narrow Way, before heading back to the starting point, via Dalston Lane.

The borough's young musicians will be performing in Hackney Town Hall Square between 12.30pm and 3.30pm. A children's play area will be created in Gillett Square.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "The carnival groups and schools have been working tirelessly on this year's Hackney One Carnival. We want people to come and line the streets and join the celebrations and enjoy the carnival atmosphere."

Street artist and gallerist Charley Uzzell Edwards, aka Pure Evil, has had his artwork sold all over the world

Good, bad and evil

STREET artist and gallerist Charley Uzzell Edwards, aka Pure Evil, is best known for his depictions of distorted, fanged rabbits that adorn walls around the world.

His artwork has been exhibited and sold globally, and has even featured on BBC One's 'The Apprentice' and Channel 4's 'Four Rooms'.

But why the name Pure Evil? Charley says: "When I was about 10 or so, I saw some rabbits and shot at them. They kind of vanished in a puff of smoke and, when I walked over, there was a dead rabbit.

"I'd killed it and felt terrible. When I was drawing in my sketch book one day, this character – this little bunny rabbit – appeared, and I wrote 'pure evil' next to it."

The name stuck, and it is used for both the gallery in Leonard Street and is also Charley's alias.

Pure Evil is not the only famous name in the family: his father was Welsh artist John Uzzell Edwards, and his great, great (times 26) grandfather was the 16th-century Lord Chancellor, Sir Thomas More.

Charley claims he became a street artist 'by accident.' He lived in San Francisco in the 1990s, where he designed street wear for clothing company Anarchic Adjustment. But at the turn of the millennium his visa was revoked and he was no longer able to live in California. Instead, he found himself living in a warehouse in Curtain Road.

Charley recalls: "There was this deus ex machina moment, where God's machine said: 'You can't go back to California. You have to stay in London.'

> "Pretty much anything goes in Hackney. I think that it's always been an area that's welcomed different people"

"But then it was the best time to be in London because there was so much growth of prints and street art. I was in the right place at the right time."

His idea to run a gallery was inspired by film director and art show curator Aaron Rose, who ran the Alleged Gallery in New York. Aaron helped to popularise the work of street artists such as Shepard Fairey and Steve 'Espo' Powers.

1990	Moves to San Francisco
2000	Returns to London
2006	First solo exhibition at the Truman Brewery
2007	Pure Evil gallery opens
2014	Starts 365 Street Art

Charley's own Pure Evil gallery has exhibited work by street artists including ROA, Sten and Lex, Ben Eine, Pro176, Mr Cenz and Gustavo Ortiz.

His latest project, 365 Street Art, involves creating at least one piece of art every day. Charley explains: "When I was in Reykjavik, I went out and found odd objects like ladders and leaves and beer bottles. I drew on them, then photographed and Instagrammed them.

"It creates a buzz, and people were running around trying to find the artwork. It's good fun – you can have an exhibition in the streets."

Although he has recently moved out of Hackney, Charley spent 14 years living in various parts of the borough, including Old Street, Shoreditch High Street, Mare Street and Hackney Road.

Charley says: "Pretty much anything goes in Hackney. I think that it's always been an area that's welcomed different people – like Huguenots, Somalians and Bangladeshis – and that's been going on for a really long time.

"It's constantly, constantly changing. Being in a place of flux is interesting and I think it will always remain that way."

Vote for Clissold Park

Green Flag Award

RESIDENTS are urged to vote for Clissold Park in this year's Green Flag People's Choice Award – which would officially make it the nation's favourite park if it wins.

The rolling 54-acre Stoke Newington park, which celebrated its 125th anniversary in July, is loved by both locals and visitors after receiving a record three million visits last year.

This summer the park held onto its coveted Green Flag status, for the eighth year running, which means it remains one of the finest parks in the country.

Now the Council has launched the 'Love Clissold? Vote Clissold' campaign before the closing date of 12noon on 30 September.

> "We're asking people to show their love for one of the borough's best and most-loved green spaces"

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "Clissold was voted seventh favourite last year but we think we can do better this year.

"We're asking people to show their love for one of the borough's best and most-loved green spaces by taking a few moments to register their vote online."

Over £9million has been invested over the past four years into restoring the park and the Grade II listed Clissold House back to their former glory through joint funding by the Council and the Heritage Lottery Fund.

The park currently offers a range of services, including tennis courts, a skate park, children's play area, learning pavilion, animal enclosures, organic food-growing area, paddling pool and cafe.

Function rooms in the refurbished Clissold House are available for hire and regularly host weddings, parties and meetings.

A new tennis clubhouse will open later this year.

The winner of this year's People's Choice award will be announced on 16 October.

Community kitchen garden planned for Morningside Estate

RESIDENTS on the Morningside Estate, E9, will be able to cook up a storm using produce from a new community garden, thanks to funding secured.

The funding will provide £2,000 of equipment and materials for the installation of raised beds, benches, plants and seeds for the garden, allowing residents to grow their own healthy produce.

The project is part of a larger plan to transform green spaces in the community, including the creation of a new wildlife garden at St Luke's Church.

Sanctuary Group, which manages the estate, and property developers Bugler have joined forces to provide £2,000 funding to create the new kitchen garden. Educational charity ecoACTIVE will help implement the project.

Jo Revett, neighbourhood partnerships manager for Sanctuary, said: "The garden offers a fantastic opportunity for the community to come together while learning more about growing their own food.

"We look forward to seeing how the garden develops over the next few months."

Rudy's Rare Records

24 Sept-5 Oct, Hackney Empire, 291 Mare Street, E8 1EJ

THE stage adaptation of hit BBC Radio 4's sitcom, 'Rudy's Rare Records', starring Lenny Henry, is coming to the Hackney Empire from 24 September to 5 October.

The show is set in a run-down record store, owned by Rudy Sharpe (Larrington Walker). His long-suffering son, Adam (Lenny Henry) helps out, but when developers threaten to take over the shop, the two must put aside their differences to keep the music alive.

Writer Danny Robins' adaptation deals with what happens when families who sometimes can't stand the sight of each other are forced together during difficult times. Ultimately, the record shop becomes a battleground for both men.

'Rudy's Rare Records' features a live band onstage performing the likes of Jimmy Cliff, Desmond Dekker and the Sugarhill Gang.

Doc'n Roll Festival 2014

25-28 September, Hackney Picturehouse & Stage 3

LONDON'S first festival dedicated to music documentaries is coming to the Hackney Picturehouse from 25 – 28 September. Doc'n Roll Festival has announced its full line-up, featuring 12 films, most of which are followed by Q&A sessions.

The festival hub is located across the road at the newly opened Stage 3 bar, at Hackney Empire, where audiences can soak up the sounds of bands the Ming City Rockers and the 45s, along with DJ sets from Primal Scream's Simone Marie Butler. Audiences will be given the chance to see films from Julien Temple, such as 'Joe Strummer: The Future is Unwritten', 'LONDON: The Modern Babylon' and 'Oil City Confidential'. Temple will be in attendance, answering questions from the floor.

Festival Director, Colm Forde, said: "We chose to launch Doc'n Roll Festival in Hackney as the borough is renowned for its culturally diverse, artistic community – not to mention a wild party or two.

"This complements our programme of exciting films and live gigs perfectly. The three festival directors hail from Ireland, Spain and Poland, but all love living in Hackney and feel very welcome there."

Pictures paint a thousand words

By Sian Mogridge

A PICTURE can be a great way of conveying information, which is probably why old photographs and images are one of the most popular sources kept at Hackney Archives.

The Archives has over 20,000 images – most of them of buildings and streets – but not many of people. The team were therefore delighted when they were donated the negative collection of RA Gibson Photographers' Studio.

Ron Gibson first opened his own camera shop and studio business in 1950, when he was still in his early twenties. He started out at 8 Upper Clapton Road (the site is now under Lea Bridge Roundabout). However he was only there for three years before moving to 97 Lower Clapton Road. He was based there for the rest of his professional life, and the studio, which was bought by his assistant after his retirement, stayed open for almost 60 years, until its closure last year.

The negatives given to the Archives date from 1952 up until the late 1970s. The earlier ones are all black and white, but by the 1970s Gibson was taking colour photographs as well.

The images give a wonderful view of Hackney's social history during this period – what people were doing, and what they thought was worth photographing – at a time when it wasn't just a question of pulling your phone out.

Many of Gibson's index books and business diaries from the 1960s were also donated, which help to show what types of commissions the studio was taking on. Much of the work was wedding photographs, and Saturdays were by far the studio's busiest day of the week – with almost wall-to-wall weddings. The diaries show that Bar Mitzvahs were also common, as were staff retirement presentations.

Unknown wedding, from RA Gibson Photographers' Studio

A brief look through the negatives brings up a wide selection of other events, from Hackney Bowling Club dinner and dance to a long-service presentation at Bush Boake Allen & Co Ltd, and from photos of Marks & Spencers (Stoke Newington branch) to a group photograph of the children at Waltham Forest Jewish Day School. Gibson also took plenty of portraits in the studio as well as going out to photograph events.

From the number of repeat customers, both businesses and individuals, it is obvious that RA Gibson Photographers was a popular studio.

Gibson sold the business in 1989 due to ill health, and he died eight years later at the age of 68. His memory lives on in the many photographs he took and the happiness they still bring to others.

Hackney Archives and Hackney Museum would be interested to hear from anyone who had their portrait taken at Gibson's studio during the 1950s-1970s and still have their photos.

The Museum has already heard back from several former customers following an article in issue 335 of Hackney Today.

Unfortunately, as Hackney Archives only holds the Studio's index books from parts of the 1960s, it can be very difficult to identify the people in the negatives, so if you recognise any of the faces in the unidentified photos on this page, get in touch.

A selection of the negatives, which have been digitised, can also be viewed online at: www.goo.gl/Lj31VM

Hackney Museum is using some of the images for their Black History Month exhibition, 'Strike a Pose: Portraits from a Hackney Photo Studio', which opens on 1 October.

Young people from Hackney Homes estates celebrate the screening of two of their films at the Rio Cinema in Dalston

Making movies a reel-ity

TALENTED young people from Hackney have been busy making short films – two of which were screened at the Rio Cinema, Dalston.

The film making project was co-organised by Hackney Homes and local filmmakers WhittyGordon Projects, following a £26,000 funding boost from the Big Lottery Fund.

The funding was secured over six months, delivering the projects to over 50 young people in Hackney, aged eight to 16-years-olds.

Participants learnt about all aspects of filming including acting, production and editing.

> "I had the best time on the film project with my friends... I was sad when it ended but I was excited to see our film

Outside Dalston's Rio Cinema

Yana Ajigbeda, 11, said: "I had the best time on the film project with my friends. I enjoyed taking the stills, preparing the score and performing in front of the camera. I was sad when it ended but was excited to see our film on the big screen."

The two short films which were screened on 30 August were a scary short movie called '20 Clevedon Close' and a film about Springfield, called 'Hackney's Best Kept Secret'.

Fiona Whitty, Film Maker and co-founder of WhittyGordon Projects, said: "Everyone's hard work has paid off and it has been amazing that the films have been screened at the Rio Cinema in Dalston."

The film club in Smalley Estate, Stoke Newington, will continue from October for young people over eight-years-old from the area.

News in brief

Become a Fire Brigade Cadet

THE London Fire Brigade is offering young people in Hackney the chance to become cadets and work with members of the community, alongside the Brigade.

Hackney Fire Cadets is set to start this month, based at Shoreditch Fire Station, on Monday nights between 5.30 and 8.30pm.

Young people aged between 14 and 18-years-old will learn skills they can use in the work place as well as gaining a BTEC qualification in Fire and Rescue Services in the Community.

Reaching out to girls' football

OVER 70 girls from across London took part in a football tournament at Mabley Green, E9. Arsenal striker Danielle Carter was also on hand to meet players and give out the trophies.

Nine teams competed for a place in the final at Hackney charity ReachOut girls' football tournament on 30 August. Young Hackney's under-13s came out as the eventual champions, alongside Kinja FC under-15s from Wembley.

Danielle chatted with many of the players and encouraged them to 'keep trying' to get into leading football clubs.

She said: "I've been impressed by the talent. It's nice to see the rise in women's football. This is where it starts."

The tournament was organised by resident youth and education activist, Peter Blackwell.

Zorbing at Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park

Hackney youngsters get sporty at the Copper Box

YOUNG people from Hackney had the chance to take part in over 30 unusual sports at a free festival at Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park.

Hackney-based project Skyway invited young people aged 12 to 25-years-old to take part in the multi-sports festival on 15 August.

The youngsters participated in free taster sessions at the Copper Box in sports including bowling, boxing, volleyball and zorbing (pictured).

Many of them had not experienced activities like this, and the aim of the festival was to encourage young people to find sports to enjoy.

Angel Vazquez, 20, a volunteer from Skyway, said: "Hopefully this festival will encourage young people in our local area to get involved in new sports that they wouldn't have considered before."

Jane Ashworth, CEO of StreetGames, added: "Young people tell us that they want a more vibrant and varied sporting offer and it's important to give them the chance to leave their community and try new things.

"We hope that this inspiration will grow into a new sporting habit for life."

The free festival was run by national sports charity StreetGames and Coca Cola Great Britain.

If you fill it in, you can help improve GP services in Hackney

If you are registered with a GP, you may have been sent the GP Patient survey in July. This survey is carried out by the Government to find out how well local GP services are serving their patients. If local people fill it in, it helps us here in Hackney to improve your services, including how we support people with long term conditions. It can also affect the level of funding we receive for your services.

The survey can be completed online at www.gp-patient.co.uk, or by sending back the blue-coloured form in the envelope provided. You can call the Ipsos MORI survey helpline on 0808 238 5385 if you have any questions.

Feeling fruity

FAMILIES have been equipped with the ingredients and skills to learn how to make nutritious fruit salads and smoothies.

The Great Grub Club offers residents a series of free healthy eating sessions in Hackney's libraries. Run in partnership with World Cancer Research Fund, the sessions help people learn healthy eating habits.

At one event in Homerton Library on 19 August, families were given recipe ideas and treated to a host of entertaining games. The activities focused on being physically active and eating a healthy and nutritious diet, which can help protect against a variety of common cancers.

> "This event offers a great opportunity to have some fun while reconnecting with fruit and healthy eating"

Sabrina Maestri, who leads the Great Grub Club initiative, said: "It's been a great chance to engage with families and help parents support their children to develop healthy habits.

"Through encouraging their children to adopt a healthy lifestyle, parents are helping give their child the best start in life."

Jenny Holliday, who lives in Millfields, attended the event with her two daughters, Freya, four, and Clara, two. She said: "My eldest daughter has decided she doesn't want to eat fruit and vegetables. This event offers a great opportunity to have some fun while reconnecting with fruit and healthy eating."

Uxue Bilbao, two, also had a great time making and eating the fruit salad. Her mother, Rosa, said: "It is a really good way to get children to eat fruit by having fun."

News in brief

How to lead a happier life

RESIDENTS are invited to join a new eight-week course to explore what really matters for a happier life.

The 'Action for Happiness' course is set to begin on 17 September, and is open for all to attend.

Each weekly session is based on questions such as 'what really matters in life?' 'what makes us happy?' and 'how should we treat others?'

Each of the eight sessions will combine a mix of learning, discussion and activities.

The Hackney 'Action for Happiness' course will take place at the New Kingshold Community Centre, Ainsworth Road (off Well Street), from 6.30-8.30pm, on Wednesday evenings from 17 Sept to 5 Nov.

There is a voluntary contribution of £3 per session.

To sign up, go to: www.actionforhappiness.org/course; or call: 020 8980 6263.

Get to understand your child

A SERIES of group sessions are being run throughout Hackney which aim to build the confidence of parents.

During September and October, First Steps' child psychology service is set to run a free service to reach out to parents who would like to strengthen relationships with their children and would like support to understand and manage their child's behaviour.

Assistant Clinical Psychologist Marietta Sandilands said: "We want to provide an opportunity for parents to come along to group sessions where we can discuss their child's behaviour issues and how to develop their relationship with their child."

There are three support groups for parents to attend in Hackney: new borns to five-years-old; five to 12-years-old; and 12 to 16-years-old.

Families can be referred to the service or refer themselves.

To find out more, or to book, call: 020 7683 4611.

Get involved in Stoptober, the 28-day stop smoking challenge, next month

STOPTOBER – the 28-day stop smoking challenge – is set to return next month with the support of the Council.

This year's Stoptober campaign is using the power of comedy to help smokers through their smoke-free challenge. Comedians getting involved include Paddy McGuinness, Al Murray, Simon Brodkin and Andi Osho.

Research shows that those who stop smoking for 28 days are five times more likely to quit smoking.

Smoking is the biggest cause of premature death in Hackney. Around 23 per cent of residents are smokers – the third highest rate in London and significantly higher than the national rate in England of 19 per cent.

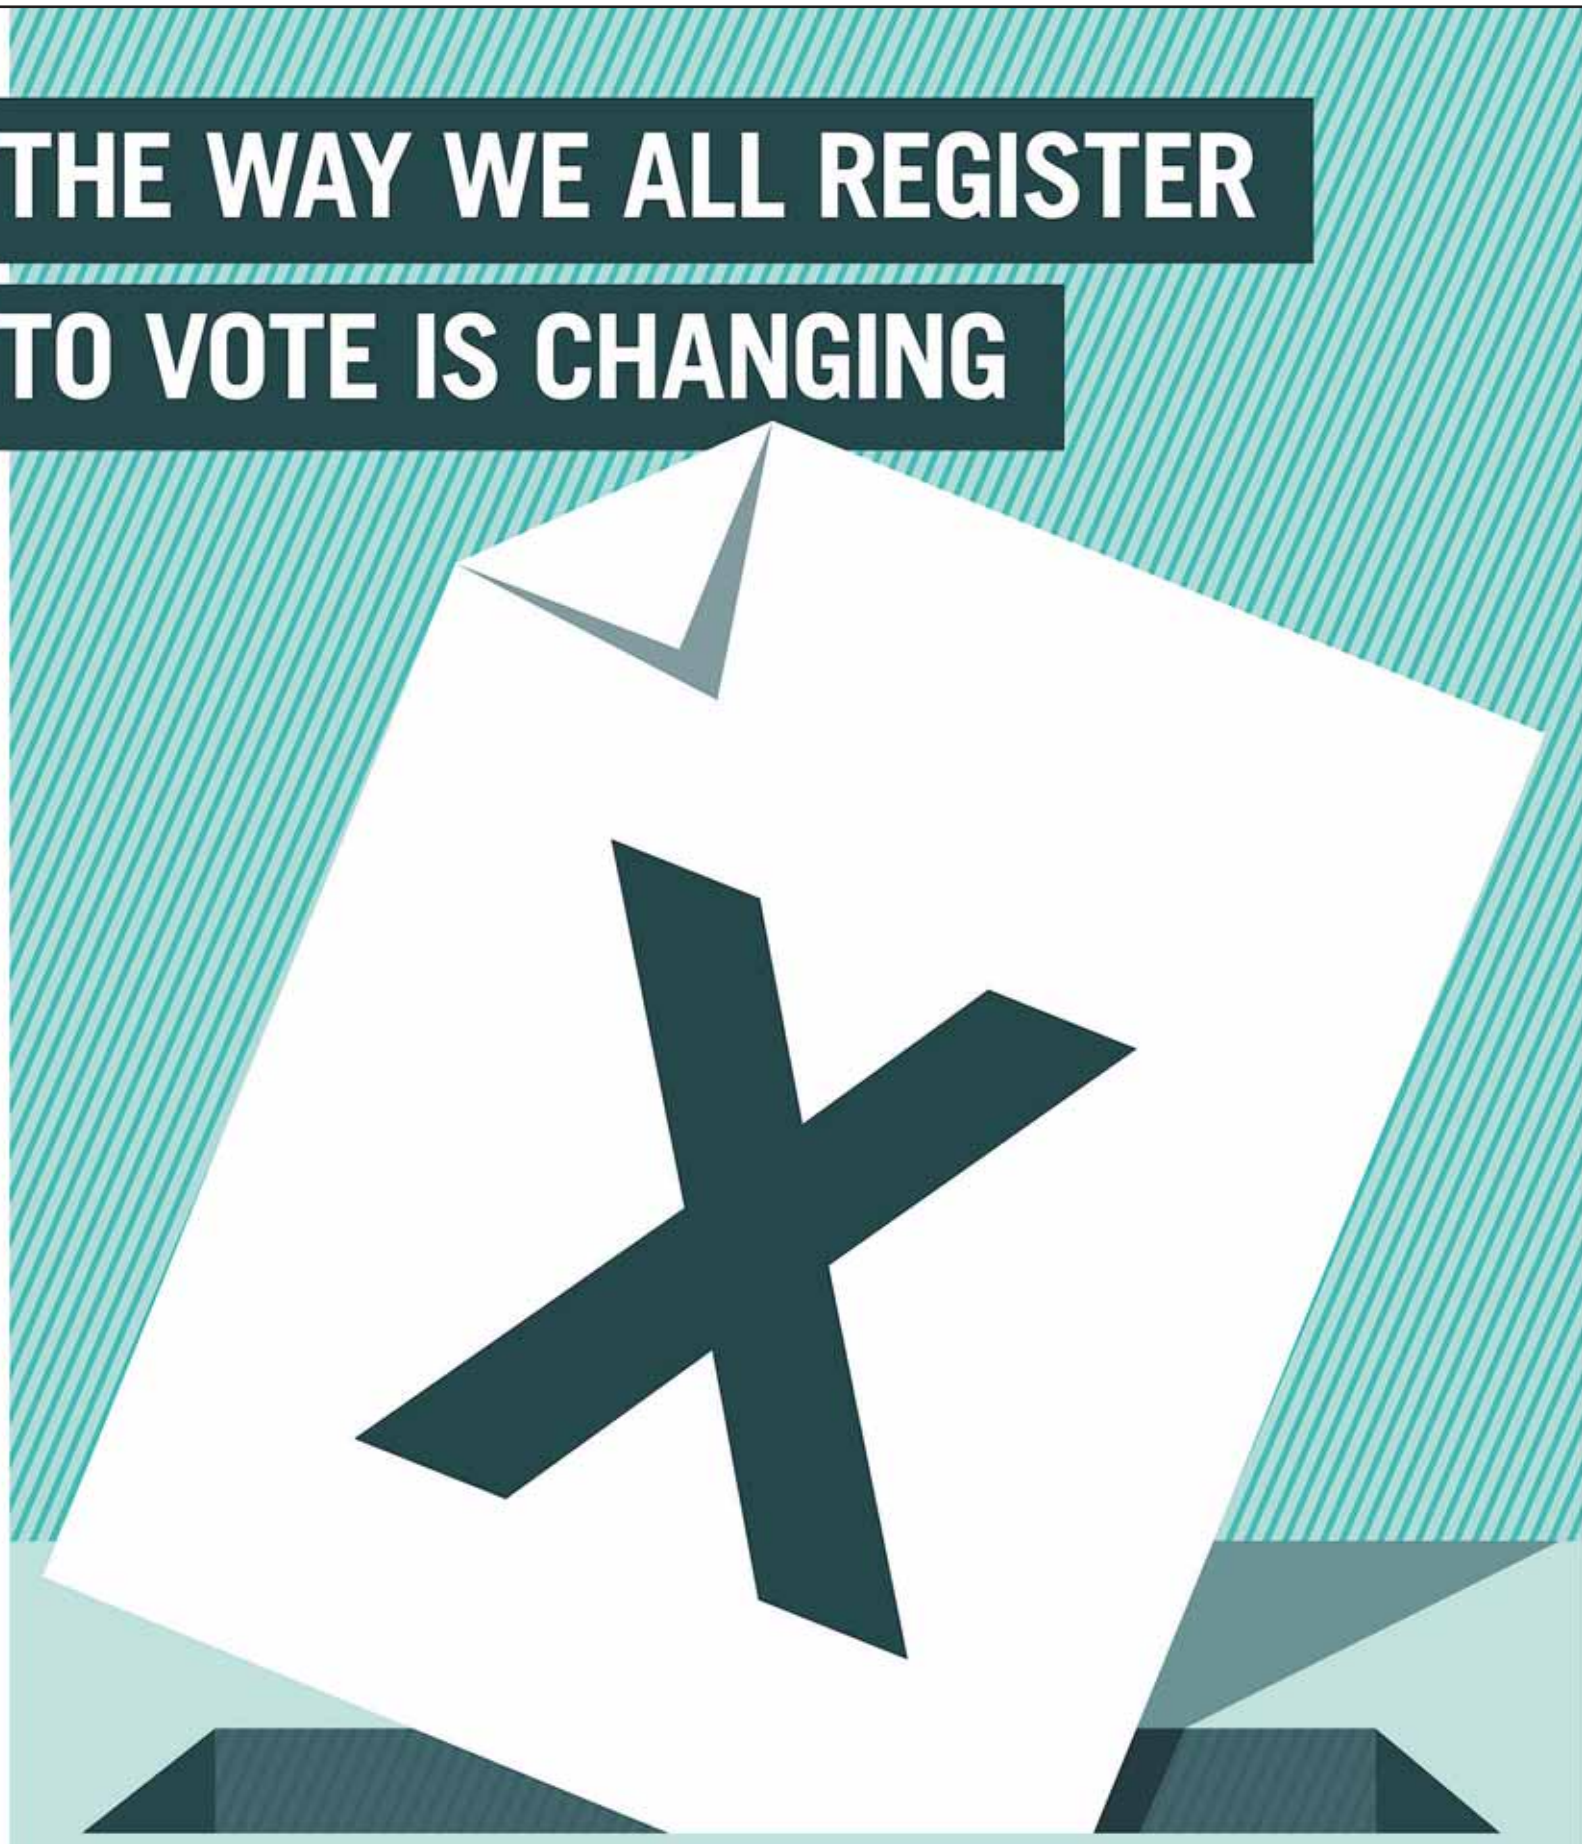

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, said: "Smoking is the biggest risk to health in Hackney – there are too many people dying from smoking related illnesses.

Supporting Stoptober is one of the many ways the Council and its partners are working to reduce the number of smokers."

People taking part in Stoptober will be provided with a free 28-day step-by-step programme, including a mobile phone app and a text or email service to support them in their smoke-free attempt. For more info, and to join the free stop smoking challenge, visit: www.smokefree.nhs.uk/Stoptober

As part of the local Stoptober campaign, Hackney Central Library is hosting the NHS Stop Smoking service on 7 October, from 1-2pm.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Waterhouse

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Waterhouse – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch.
Sous chef Lorren Joseph says: "With summer almost over, and it getting a bit colder, I like warm comfort food. Nothing screams 'comfort and warmth' more to me then a nice beef stroganoff with rich mashed potatoes.

Beef Stroganoff

Makes 4

Preparation time
10 mins

Cooking time
1 hour

Ingredients

- 1kg beef strips (sirloin steak sliced) marinated in 1 tablespoon of salt and half a tablespoon of pepper
- 2 onions finely sliced
- 4 carrots (paysanne)
- 500g button mushrooms
- 1 tbsp of chopped thyme
- 5 cloves garlic
- 1 whole head celery
- 2 large leeks
- 500ml chicken stock
- 125ml double cream
- 1 tbsp chopped parsley
- 1 tbsp of chopped rosemary
- 30ml olive oil.

Method

- Heat the olive oil in a large 'heavy bottom' pan, mid to high heat
- Add the onions, leeks, celery, thyme and rosemary and sweat off until soft and translucent. Add the crushed garlic and continue to sweat down until soft
- Push veg to side of pan, add a touch more oil to centre of pan, and add the beef
- Sauté the beef for about 5 minutes, until covered. Add carrots to the pan and continue to sweat off
- Add the washed button mushrooms, sweat off for 2 minutes then add chicken stock and allow to simmer for 30mins
- Just before you take the pan off the heat add your double cream and parsley and stir. Allow to stand for 10mins minimum before serving.

Waterhouse is a social enterprise – and home of Blue Marble Training – supporting local people into the restaurant industry. Owned by Shoreditch Trust, its profits go back into a programme across the borough.

Waterhouse in Orsman Road, N1, is open five days a week.

Have your say on services for women affected by FGM

INDIVIDUALS, groups and communities that have been affected by the practice of female genital mutilation (FGM) are being asked for their views on what services are needed to protect women in Hackney.

The Council is working with partners and local community groups to increase awareness of the issue and provide the right services and support for women and girls who have been affected or are at risk of FGM.

Around 137,000 women are likely to have undergone FGM in the UK, including a significant number in Hackney. FGM refers to all procedures that involve partial or total removal of the external parts of a woman's genital organs for non-medical reasons. Survivors can be left with lifelong physical problems, including difficulty in childbirth and psychological trauma. Some women even lose their lives.

The Council is seeking views on potential new services including an FGM clinic, a prevention service, a community education programme, FGM support groups and a women's health and leadership skills training programme.

To have your say, fill in the survey at: bit.ly/fgmsurvey; or email: Leethen.Bartholemew@hackney.gov.uk

Woodberry Down Community Primary School has formed a partnership with The Federation of Grazebrook and Shacklewell Primary Schools from April 2014. As a result of this partnership, we are keen to appoint an additional Premises Officer to ensure a full time provision of site management in the school. The school will be undergoing redevelopment and major building works in the near future and we invite you to be part of seeing the school through this transition period by joining our team.

We pride ourselves on the safe and pleasant environment that our pupils learn in. We would like you to be part of this learning experience and welcome you to join us to continue to create a stimulating site for our pupils and staff at Woodberry Down Community Primary School.

We require someone who can carry out minor repairs and appropriate health and safety checks. You will have a good level of DIY skills and be a proficient ICT user. You will be expected to liaise effectively with contractors and be willing to attend appropriate training courses. As a key holder, the role will also include security of the school premises including all buildings and contents.

The successful candidate will be energetic, flexible, be able to work as part of a team, as well as having a good sense of humour. You will need to have significant school based experience in this role. Previous applicants need not apply.

Visits to the school are warmly welcomed and encouraged please contact Maxine Ward, Office Manager at Woodberry Down to make an appointment.

HOW TO APPLY: Please download the application pack from the Hackney Learning Trust website, alternatively email: mward@woodberrydown.hackney.sch.uk or phone the school for a pack to be sent out. Please state on your application which time period you are applying to work for.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR JULES PIPE

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough.
The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is elected annually from among the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Sharon Patrick.
